New Machines Start Running In Pepper Bakery

A factory machinist has been busy the past two days setting up new equipment in the Pepper Bakery. This new, improved equipment includes an automatic slicer and bread wrapping machine capable of slicing and wrapping over two thousand loaves of bread an hour.

The installation of this new equipment is made necessary by the greatly increased business the Pepper Bakery is enjoying for its sliced loaves and the ever popular Pepper Thrift loaves. Two trucks are keeping the roads hot delivering Pepper bread to the cities and villages in this area. The new machines are now in operation, and will be gladly shown to the public by the genial proprietor, William E. Pepper.

Conferences of Teachers Held Mon. and Tues.

A conference of rural school teachers from the towns of Thurston, Cameron and Rathbone was held Monday afternoon at the Cameron school. The conference was called by Frank H. Smith, district superintendent of schools. Thirty teachers were present.

Standardized tests were distributed by the superintendent. These tests are to be given in the rural schools next Monday and Tuesday. On Tuesday afternoon a similar meeting was held at the Borden school, attended by teachers from the town of Woodhull. About seventeen teachers attended the Borden meeting.

St. Lawrence Waterway Project Commended By Miss Darrin

Current Events Lecturer Also Discusses Monetary Program — Emphasizes Objections by Senator Glass —Praises Mussolini's Work in Italy—Reviews Current Books.

"Ocean Transportation", "Japan's Restless Activity" and "Italy's Rebirth" were the subjects discussed by Miss Katharine Darrin, current events lecturer, in the fourth talk of a series given in the high school study hall Monday night.

In speaking of ocean transportation, Miss Darrin referred to the proposed St. Lawrence waterway, now before Congress for action. She traced the history of this movement to open the Great Lakes to ocean shipping back to 1920 when President Woodrow Wilson made the proposal that the United States should combine with Canada to make a great northern waterway through the St. Lawrence. President Wilson's successors, Harding, Coolidge, Hoover and Roosevelt have all, successively, urged upon Congress the advisability of definite and favorable action upon this proposal. Under President Hoover a treaty was actually negotiated between the two countries to provide for the actual building of the St. Lawrence ship canal. The cost was estimated as roughly in the neighborhood of $500,000,000 and the project would be under international supervision.

In referring to arguments advanced in favor of the project, Miss Darrin stated that the middle western states favor it strongly. The feeling prevails in that section that the building of the St. Lawrence waterway would be a great help to the people and interests of the Middle West, as for instance the auto trade in Detroit, agricultural products, etc. It has been estimated by those favoring the project that 40,000,000 people in the American

Father - Son Banquet To Be Sponsored By Woodhull Churches

The Baptist and Methodist Churches of Woodhull will hold their annual Father and Son Banquet, Tuesday, February 13, at 7:30 p. m. in the Hopper Memorial Hall of the M. E. Church.

Woodhull is very fortunate to have for the speaker the Rev. Webb W. Ayres, of Wayland. Mr. Ayers is a member of the American Legion and served his country over seas. He is a fine speaker and will have a great message for the fathers and sons of Woodhull.

It is hoped the entire community will co-operate with the churches and help to make this banquet a great success.

Plans are being made to accomodate 150 fathers and sons.

Addison People Made Homeless By Night Fire

Mr. and Mrs. Robert Magoon and family narrowly escaped with their lives from a fire which gutted their home early Tuesday morning. The fire, of undetermined orign, was not discovered until it blazed hotly in the middle of the structure, and the occupants were forced to rush out in the bitter cold night clad only in their night clothes.

The fire was discovered a little before three o'clock in the room of the daughter, Alice Magoon, who aroused her sister Mary Charlotte and the rest of the family. The smoke in the house was so thick the family were unable to wait to dress or secure clothes, Mrs. Magoon running to the home of Fred Hauff in her bare feet, and others of the occupants suffered intensely from exposure to the sub-zero weather of the night. Thus scantily clad, neighbors were aroused with difficulty to send in the fire alarm, causing considerable delay before the Addison Fire Department could be warned out.

The upper story of the house was badly burned and the roof was ruined, the firemen doing valiant work to save the lower story from going up in smoke. All the clothing of the [illegible] was stored in one room, cut off from rescue by the fire, except a suit of Mr. Magoon's which was ruined by the collapse of a ceiling. All the furniture not burned was rendered practically worthless by smoke and water. The loss was partly covered by insurance.

Rendered homeless by the fire, Mr. and Mrs. Magoon and Mary Charlotte have taken temporary residence with Mr. and Mrs. Hauff. Mrs. Isaac Magoon and Alice are staying with the former's daughter, Mrs. Phillip Dininny.

KANSAS MAN LIKES EDITORIALS

A Kansas man stopped into the Advertiser office yesterday to pay his compliments to the publishers and express his appreciation of the editorial columns. This gentleman has been taking several periodicals, one being a Kansas news paper of national circulation, and he stated he liked the editorials in the ADVERTISER the best of any paper he reads. He has been reading the paper of a relative which was coming to his home, but subscribed for the ADVERTISER in his own name.

The publishers appreciate his words and the many similar expressions coming to the office from day to day.

Hi-Lights and Shadows of the Week's News

The President signed the much discussed monetary bill Wednesday, which had been passed by Congress recently. On the same day the chief executive, exercising the dictatorial powers over money which the Act gives him, reduced the value of the U. S. Dollar to 59.6 cents. The bill commandeers all money from the Federal Reserve banks into the Federal treasury.

WOODHULL BOYS ENTERTAIN AT BALL

Wilson Horton and Wilbur Horton attended the President's Ball at the municipal hall in Bath Tuesday evening.

They presented a musical selection on the harmonica and guitar during the entertainment, responding to two encores.

They were accompanied by Mr. and Mrs. Earl H. Brown, daughter Doris and Miss Eleanor Andrews.

BENJAMIN CLEVELAND

Mr. and Mrs. E. G. Husted and Miss Minnie Husted were in Greene last week, Monday, to attend the funeral of Mrs. Husted's brother, Benjamin Cleveland.

Mr. Cleveland, aged 78 years, was born in Woodhull where he spent the early part of his life.

He is survived by his wife, one son, Charles, of Greene, one sister, Mrs. E. G. Husted of Woodhull and a brother, Daniel Cleveland of Campbell.

Rebekahs To Entertain With Social Evening

The Addison Rebekah Lodge will entertain tomorrow, February 2nd, with a social evening. Music, cards also dancing may be enjoyed.

Refreshments will be served, it is expected that each lady will bring sandwiches for herself and one other person.

All Odd Fellows, Rebekahs, and their families and invited friends are requested to come and enjoy a pleasant evening.

DAIRYMEN'S LEAGUE WILL MEET SATURDAY

The annual meeting of the Dairymen's League will be held Saturday, February 3rd. An oyster dinner will be served at noon. Members and their families are requested to attend.

An invitation has been extended to Herbert Seeley, director, and to Wayne Manchester, from the division office in Elmira, to be present. Entertainments will be presented in the afternoon under the direction of the associate delegate, Mrs. Edgar Thompson. Officials for the new year will be elected.

Game Supper For Woodhull Boy Scouts a Big Success

Fine Program Arranged to Boost Finances of the Local Troop—$57 Netted by Supper—Ladies Worked Hard for the Undertaking.

Boy Scouts and Girl Scouts are still discussing the big promotion game dinner here on Saturday night when a large crowd of local citizens as well as large delegations from Addison, Corning and other places, turned out. The net receipts were about $60 with some ticket sellers to yet report. Clarence Bebout won the celluloid hair curler for selling the largest number of tickets, turning in $12.50.

It was announced during the banquet that the Addison Bank, through Ray S. Brown, who is also a patron, had presented every Boy Scout with a bound copy of the Boy Scout Manual.

During the supper a vocal solo, "The Old Spinning Wheel" was given by Douglas Reynolds and several musical selections by Wilbur and Wilson Horton.

A burlesque broadcast was put on, but in all seriousness it was stressed that the present activity in Scouting in Woodhull is due largely to the efforts of Robert Mason, who for the past two years went "solo" without any of the backing or help of any kind, which is now accorded the new Scoutmaster, Major D. J. MacLachlan.

Anniversary week of Boy Scouts will be observed at community church meeting at the Baptist Church on Sunday night, February 18.

On Saturday noon the Boy Scouts will assemble at the office of Asa T. Smith to listen to the broadcast of President Roosevelt, who has long been identified with the Scout movement.

At the game dinner the mothers of both Boy Scouts and Girl Scouts spent many weary hours arranging the details of the big supper and deserve much credit for the success of the affair, which was one of the largest of the kind held in Woodhull in years.

The Girl Scouts were the pretty waitresses and they, of course later had a good laugh on the Boy Scouts when the ladies committee doffed their aprons and handed them over to the Boy Scouts and requested them to wash the dishes. Well, a good Scout always does a good turn every day. So the dishes were duly washed.

Those serving on the food committee were: Chairman, Mrs. Lera Quick, Mrs. Mary Park, Mrs. Lillian Paul, Mrs. Cassie Smith, Mrs. Inez Hackett and Mrs. Earle Brown, assisted by Mrs. Grace Dyer and Mrs. Miriam Andrews.

Among those from out of town attending were: Mr. and Mrs. Mason B. Coger of Corning; Dr. and Mrs. Amos Stiker and sons Gerard and David, Florence Edwards, Earl Wilson, Mr. and Mrs. Lester Andrews, daughter Ervilla May, Mr. and Mrs. Ray S. Brown, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Apgar, Mr. and Mrs. Clair Chart, of Addison and Miss Sylvia Husted of Elmira, the Rev. and Mrs. Ralph Webb and Mrs. William Gessner of Addison.

Entertain Guests With Rabbit Stew

Mr. and Mrs. Ray Morton entertained with a rabbit stew at their home Saturday evening. The guests included Leo Kramer of Wayland, Preston Odle of Osceola, Miss Ermyne Wheatcraft, Una P. Morton, Robert Morton and the host and hostess, Mr. and Mrs. Morton.

SYLVESTER — SMITH

Miss Elizabeth N. Smith and Clayton O. Sylvester both of Bath, were married at 4:30 o'clock Sunday at the Methodist parsonage by the Rev. Jesse Wilson, pastor of the M. E. Church. They were attended by Miss Dorothy M. Clark and Paul W. Landers, also of Bath.

PHILATHEAS TO ENJOY SUPPER FRIDAY

The Philathia Class of the Woodhull Baptist Church will enjoy a class party at the church parlors Friday evening.

Supper will be served at 5 o'clock and the remainder of the evening will be spent in games and a social time.

All members and their families are invited to attend.

SUBSTITUTE TEACHER

Mrs. Arthur Peck of Addison is substituting for Miss Mary Stuart at the high school this week in the Latin and History classes. Miss Stewart is confined to her home by illness.

Wildey Night Observed By Rebekahs

Thomas Wildey night was observed by the Rebekah Lodge at their regular meeting Friday evening.

At the close of the business meeting a short program was given as follows:

Sketch of Thomas Wildey's Life ---------- Minnie Husted

Selections by Wilbur and Wilson Horton on the accordion, banjo and guitar. Among the selections were "Red Wing," "The Prisoner Song," and "Coming Around the Mountain."

Following this cards, dominoes and jig-saw puzzles were enjoyed and a tureen supper served.

Those attending were: Mr. and Mrs. Henry Myers, Mr. and Mrs. Walsteen Church, daughter Lois, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Merring, Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Bebout and daughter Frances, Mrs. Elwyn Ten Broeck, Mr. and Mrs. Maurice Williams, Earle Miller, Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Towsley, son Billy and daughter Elinor, Mr. and Mrs. Harold Husted, Mr. and Mrs. La Rue Symonds, daughter Laura, Mr. and Mrs. Earle Brown, daughter Doris, Mr. and Mrs. Myron Bebout Marie Groves, Minnie Husted, Wilbur Horton, Wilson Horton, Mrs. Leon Quick, Mrs. Curry Davis, Mrs. Ray Morton and son Robert.

JASPER SOCIAL AND NEWS NOTES OF SPECIAL INTEREST

Faculty Presents Play

The play, "Fickle Fortune," presented by the faculty members was very well given Monday evening to the large crowd present. Each member was very well adapted to his part. Those taking part were: Mrs A. M. Wallace, Miss Alice Burt, Miss Helen June, Miss Dorothy Waters, Miss Ella Rathbun, John Hambel, Lewis Graham, Supt. C. A. Bruen, Principal W. H. Willover, Miss Georgianna Hopper, Mrs. W. H. Huntington and Miss Alberta Frees. Several selections were rendered by the school orchestra between acts. A trombone duet was played by Charles Marlatt and Lloyd Jones and a clarinet duet by Van France and Glen Waight.

Celebrate 50th Wedding Anniversary

Mr. and Mrs. L. E. Hunt were very pleasantly surprised Sunday when their immediate families came in honoring their 50th wedding anniversary which occured January 30. Mr. and Mrs. Hunt were married by the Rev Criswell, a former Methodist minister. Those present were: Mr. and Mrs. H. G. Hunt and four children; Mr. and Mrs. Frank Spencer and son, Mr. and Mrs. William Wheaton and Mr. and Mrs. Gordon Card of Canisteo; Mr. and Mrs. Clifford Hunt and two children and Mrs. Mabel Kelley.

Mr. and Mrs. Hunt feel that they have received many blessings as there have been but two deaths in the family and they being infants. Their many friends in Jasper join in congratulating them on the many years of wedded life. Both are very active in lodge and church work.

A NATION WITHOUT PRESS

Just what kind of a country would this be if all the newspapers and magazines in the land were forced to suspend publications? To answer the question in part; dissemination of information and knowledge would drop amazingly. Politicians and political parties stripped of the restraint of press opinion would immediately assume despotic powers which would rob the people of every right guaranteed under the Constitution. Neighbors would die and be buried with their friends knowing nothing about it. Monopolies would flourish like weeds, and prices of commodities unrestrained by the knowledge of the public now enlightened by advertising, would leap to undreamed of heights. In fact, in a short time America would sink into a state of feudal despotism, with self appointed rulers secure in their positions, until a bloody revolution should overthrow them to install a new set of despots, likewise selfish and unrestrained.

This picture seems a far cry from our ideal of the "land of the free, and the home of the brave", yet there have actually been forces set in motion which if unstopped, could accomplish this dark and forbidding end for our beloved country. Forces which even those who are initiating the move, little dream of the final effect.

Those who stop to consider the matter know that newspapers and magazines cannot be published without the support of advertising revenue, for a periodical depending for income entirely upon the resale price, must necessarily sell for a sum only the wealthy could pay. Consequently a country the papers of which were stripped of advertising, must be a country without newspapers. And right now under this "New Deal" a tendency is developing to drive all advertising out of the nation's publications. Few of those in the Administration may realize the danger it is true, yet the danger is there and looms larger each day with movement of the Administration toward government control of industry.

Leaving entirely aside the threatened muzzling of the free press by means of restrictive codes, the immediate danger lies in the tendency to subject the manufacturer of a product to such severe regulation the natural flow of that product is interfered with, so his advertising becomes ineffective. Continuance of this tendency will finally result in the abandonment of the advertising-merchandising method of selling, upon which our entire economic structure is now based.

No one would disagree with the government's theory that to sell products below the cost of production constitutes unfair competition. But as is so often the case in so-called reform movements, the government is trying to carry the matter too far by a system of supervised price fixing which may well destroy this institution we like to call the press. The latest ruling by the government group would permit concerns not advertising, to sell at a lower cost than competing concerns which do advertise, the theory being that advertising is a cost of production and must be added to the resale price as such.

A recent case in point happened in the District of Columbia two weeks ago when the larger oil companies which sell and advertise quality products, were requested to raise their prices one-half cent above the selling price per gallon of gasoline offered by competing products of non-advertised, little known companies. The natural result of such a move against a manufacturer would be for him to withdraw his advertising, to forestall governmental discrimination. May it be said that one large company has refused to raise its prices, risking government persecution rather than surrender a business custom and right it considers fundamental and inalienable.

Of course, in justifying its stand in this matter the government group is flying in the face of all precedent, and the priceless experience gained through a hundred years test of the advertising-merchandising method of marketing, that has certainly developed our country and been the very foundation of our distribution system. To the editors it seems that the public must quickly choose whether we as a people shall immediately swing to the right or the left.

On the one side is the accumulative experience of years, crying that advertising has hastened distribution, created employment and fostered industrial development by telling the public where they could buy what they wanted to buy, at fair prices. On the other side is a group of experimentalists without practical business experience, flocking out of college class rooms to try their laboratory theories upon 120 million Americans.

THE WORST PRISON

The newly appointed Commissioner of Correction of New York City has declared that Welfare Island Penitentiary is "the worst prison in the world". That is covering a lot of territory, but readers of news despatches describing the prison, are inclined to agree with the Commissioner.

Austin H. MacCormick had hardly received his appointment to the office of Commissioner from Mayor LaGuardia when he swooped down on the prison island, unheralded. He was astonished to find a prison in which control of the institution rested mainly in two gangsters. Overlords of their universe, were these men who enjoyed every liberty of the place; waited upon by valets, pampered in every conceivable manner these men operated an opium ring to dispense narcotics to the addicts of the place. Served food in their rooms and given beds in the prison hospital, the rulers of the place even had a flock of homing pigeons supposedly for smuggling opium within the institution.

So suddenly did Commissioner MacCormick drop in on the place, that neither Warden McCann nor the gang rulers of the place had any inkling of his errand. One of the gang rulers of the place sported monogrammed stationery, while the other kept a vicious police dog chained to his bed. The dog was named "Screw Hater", a "screw" being prison parlance for a keeper. An investigator had learned a few weeks earlier that a library of some 1,000 books had disappeared as pampered urisoners tore out the leaves to cook steaks and chops in their cells. Only about 1200 of the 1700 inmates of the prison took their meals in the mess hall, the remainder being able to pay for the privilege of having personal service and the best of everything cooked.

So will rottenness and political corruption creep into the vitals of a country. It is all explained by the character of keepers and the occupation of the inmates. The latter being largely gunmen and racketeers who made huge sums of money in their illicit trade, and hence have the funds to buy easy keepers and pay for the special privileges these men were able to provide.

The one greatest and most dangerous weapon these parasites of society have wielded, is money. Making their huge profits at the expense of honest people, these social maggots hold power so far only faintly dreamed. Controlling their hordes of protective lawyers, unscrupulous judges and political tools, these leeches are oftener found on the stylish golf course than in the haunts they are supposed to frequent. By their very veneer of apparent respectability are they the more dangerous. To them prison walls are vacuous bricks and legal obstructions visible lines only to be glided easily across.

Some reformer has suggested that stripped of the name ""gangster" they would lose their glamour, and labeled "hoodlum" they might become less figures of adulation. "Hoodlum" does not express their role by any manner of means. It is a title we have too long associated with the boy of the street who delighted the corner gang by throwing dead cats at passers by, but inwardly had a soul like any human. But these creatures are not so, and being insufferable insects they should always be addressed by their true name, "maggots". They flit out on glossy wings into the visible world to dazzle the eyes of those who know not their true being, but in their true life they grow fat on the flesh of others.

It is not enough to confine these man-shaped objects to jail. They should be stripped of their power when convicted, and stripping of power would be the taking away from them of every last ill-gotten dollar. If the government must confiscate the money, let it begin by confiscating the funds of such maggots, that prisons do not subdue.

THAT PRESHO POST OFFICE

An example of hasty, ill-advised government action which works injustice to citizens is seen in the case of the neighboring hamlet of Presho. Up to a few weeks ago Presho had a post office. Then came an order suddenly through from Washington abolishing it, so scores of people are bereft of most of the convenience of United States mail.

The people of Presho like the man without a country, have no mailing address, no place to receive mail, no place to mail letters. They have no R. F. D. route and most of them are in a terrible quandry to know what to do under the circumstances. The move was probably made under the guise of cutting costs. Cutting costs is laudable, where it does not cause discriminatory injustice to citizens. It is probable the post master of Presho was being paid a salary of about $50 a year.

A few minutes of the time Postmaster General Farley is devoting to making Democracy supreme through his dual office as chairman of the party, would pay that salary. But then the people of Presho are few in numbers and their votes would not count heavily in the next national election.

Abolish advertising and in less than a half dozen years ninety-nine per cent of the periodicals in the land must cease publication. It is up to the people to decide whether they want enlightenment and progress to continue in this land, or if they hopefully anticipate a day in which newspapers would cost one dollar a copy and magazines five to ten dollars each. That assertion is not theory, it is a fact well established by all having knowledge of the printing industry.

When the Republic of Germany was founded with a free press, the people were free for the first time in their history. Now what a change, for a rampant Hitler has choked all comment out of the German press, and a free citizen dare not even whisper the dictator's name upon the streets of Berlin. A pressless nation is a Paradise on earth for politicians in power, but a living hell for the citizens of that land.

The Big Crackdown

At last, the big crackdown has arrived.

Those two little New Rochelle restaurants no longer stand alone as objects of official wrath for defiance of NRA. No, sir!

The government is going after the big fellows. Secretary Ickes and Attornel General Cummings have filed suit against one of the Titans of American industry.

"Who? U. S. Steel, which broke faith with General Johnson and the President and refused to recognize the miners' union?"

Oh, no. Not U. S. Steel.

"Who? Weir, who defied express NRA rulings and held a 'Hitler election' to establish a company union?"

No. Not Weir.

"It must be Budd, who was the most open in his defiance of NRA. It's Budd, isn't it?"

Wrong again. It's Standard Oil of New Jersey.

"What did Standard do? Violate their minimum wage provisions? Overwork their men? Try to spike a union movement?"

Oh, no. Standard has always paid good wages. Standard had NRA working hours even before NRA. But Standard, according to the Oil Administration, committed the heinous offense of organizing a "Babe Ruth Boys' Club" and giving prizes to kids as part of an advertising plan.

The recovery program staggered from this blow. U. S. Steel, Weir, Budd, all can wait until this is settled. This is the big crackdown.

"Well, what harm do these boys' clubs do recovery?"

None. But this is the big crackdown just the same.

Utility Question Confronts New York State Legislature

Albany, Jan. 30—Largely, perhaps, because attention was focussed upon it by the contest over election of an Assembly Clerk, the utility and water power question will be one of the chief subjects for consideration this session. And indications at the present moment are that the result will be legislation, already admittedly too long delayed, which will protect the consumer of gas and electricity, but will not inflict an injustice upon the utility industries which are willing to conform to the regulations adopted and to treat their patrons in a spirit of fairness. There are some who would go farther and deliberately inflict upon the utility corporations punishment for their alleged sins of the past, even almost to the point of destruction. And in this there is considerable encouragement from mass meetings and action by various bodies over the State.

Republican Position Strong

The position of the Republican party in this matter is regarded as particularly strong, in spite of the fact that for many years it has admittedly suffered from the charge that its leaders in control of legislation were unduly friendly toward the water power and utility interests. At the recent meeting of county chairmen in Utica resolutions were adopted committing the party to a distinct progressive policy on this and other questions. This was supplemented by a telegram to the Republican legislators from State Chairman Macy, following the presentation of Governor Lehman's utility program, in which the Chairman said: "Strongly urge prompt consideration and passage legislation carrying into effect Governor's utility program outlined in his statement this morning. Reactionary forces both parties have thwarted similar measures in the past. Public opinion every county in state demanding reduction rates from prosperity levels. Policies of sane liberalism adopted by party leaders at Utica pointed way. Liberal-minded progressive Republicans have taken lead. Let us all unite in this splendid opportunity to demonstrate adherence to the principles upon which our party was founded". The sentiments of this telegram meet with general approval here.

Journalists Up 100 Per Cent

Newspaper men are rapidly attaining a better showing in the State's legislative halls. It is true, none of them have broken into the present Senate, but new members will be chosen by that body next fall and perhaps it will then be leavened with the journalistic germ. Meanwhile this session sees the number of publishers doubled in the Assembly. One of the new members is Rudolph Bauer of Brooklyn, for a number of years publisher of the West End News, a flourishing weekly. He has been an independent Democrat who consistently fought Tammany and was elected on the Republican-Fusion ticket. He has not affiliated with either the Republicans or Democrats, but describes himself as an Independent, hence has a party all his own. Another is Wheeler Milmoe, publisher of the Bee-Journal at Canastota, who represents Madison County. The third among the new members is Laurens Hamilton of Rockland County, who got his place by unseating a Democrat.

* * *

All Last Year's Came Back

Fortunately for the maintenance of the Fourth Estate's status, all its members of last session were reelected. They include George E. Deneen, Brooklyn reporter, who is serving his tenth term; James D. Pollard, Editor of the Seneca Falls Courier-Journal, serving his fifth term, and Harry L. Averill, former publisher of the Palmyra Courier, now representing Wayne County for the third year. Of the six, but one, Deneen, is a Democrat, four are Republicans, and the other is Mr. Bauer, the Independent.

Wants State to Practice NRA

Senator Thomas C. Desmond of Orange County has renewed his attempt of last year to get the State of New York to practice the NRA code which it has officially indorsed and recommended to its citizens. He has introduced a bill limiting the hours of all New York State employees to eight a day except in emergencies. The Senator has collected statistics showing that a large number among the State's 30,000 employees work much more than eight hours a day and many of them for seven days a week. They are mostly among the lowest paid on the list, including scrubwomen and cleaners about state institutions, attaches of hospitals, etc. Mr. Desmond argues that the correction of this situation would not only give justice to the workers, but would provide places for others and thus aid in solving the unemployment problem.

Turning a Dog Into a Horse

Perhaps it's only natural that there should be a good deal of mystery connected with race track legislation, since races themselves are mysteries, as any fellow who undertakes to pick the winners can testify. But the climax of all mystery seems to have been reached in the bill of Senator Berg of the Bronx, which undertakes to change a dog into a horse by legislation. He proposes to legalize betting by amending the present racing laws, and also desires that the privilege be extended to dog racing. Hence Section 21 of the proposed law, which reads as follows: "Horse to mean dog in certain cases. Whenever in this chapter the word horse is used it shall be deemed to mean and include dogs, and whenever horse race is used it shall be deemed to mean a dog race."

Another Interpretation In Business Progress

By Dr. Robert Riegel, Director of the Bureau of Business and Social Reasearch, The University of Buffalo.

Business appears to be see-sawing back toward normal an a saw-toothed upward curve. Now that it is history, even the most ardent partisans of the administration are willing to admit that an almost steady decline occurred from July into November. It was plainly shown in several reliable statistical indices and was reported in this column in August, September, October and November. The middle of November saw this decline halted and a steady improvement ensue for the eight following weeks.

For the past two weeks there has been again a decline, and the drop in the week ending January 13 was very marked. We are now approximately in the situation of January, 1932. Employment for December declined nearly 2% and total pay rolls 1% below the November totals. Wholesale prices fell slightly.

Back in April and May I stated that monetary inflation in some form was indicated, and that government bonds constituted one form of inflation. This in now being partly realized in the issuance of Treasury certificates and notes. The object is to raise prices and the only prompt-acting lever is inflation. In the immediate past this has been accompanied by some gains in employment and pay rolls, although the increase in total purchasing power has been much overestimated. If employment and pay rolls continue to gain, well and good; if not, and prices are forced up, we shall see another reaction such as occured from July to November.

Erwin Gas Consumers To Net Company Only $1.00 First Year

Albany, Jan. 29—A schedule of gas rates to be charged by the Crystal City Gas Company in new territory in the Town of Erwin in Steuben County has been approved by the Public Service Commission.

A franchise for the furnishing of gas in the town of Erwin was granted to the New York Central Electric Corporation by the town in 1930 and approved by the Commission. This franchise was transferred to the Crystal City Gas Company in 1933 with the Commission's approval. The extension covered by the franchise is about 1600 feet and will render gas service to about 15 houses along the Painted Post-Addison highway in th southeastern section in the town of Erwin. It is to establish rates in this territory that the company filed the new schedule which has been approved by the Commission.

The only service classification in the new rate schedule is for service for fuel, light and power and is a minimum charge of $1.00 per month with a provision that where no gas is used in any billing period no bill will be rendered. The rate per month is expressed in both gross and net amounts. The gross rates are slightly higher than the net rates and the difference between the gross and net amounts is to represent a discount on bills paid within ten days. The rate per meter per month in net amounts is 10 cents per hundred cubic feet for the first 1,000 cubic feet, 8½ cents p hundred cubic feet for the next 3,000 cubic feet and 6 cents per hundred cubic feet for excess use. The discount represented by the difference between gross and net rates is 10 cents. per thousand cubic feet on the first 1,000 cubic feet, 8 cents per thousand cubic feet on the next 3,000 cubic feet and 2 cents per thousand cubic feet on all over 4,000 cubic feet and this is allowed on all bills paid within ten days from the date of billing.

The company estimates that there will be ten customers in the town of Erwin the first year and 15 the second year. The investment is estimated at $1,450 the first year and $1,550 the second year. It is further estimated that the revenue will be $393 the first year and $611 the second year. Production expenses are estimated at $247 the first year and $387 the second year and total operating expenses are given as $392 the first year and $585 the second year. According to these estimates there will be available for fixed charges only $1 the first year and $26 the second year. The company was required to pay $44 a year for the rental of bridge imposed by the State Highway Department for crossing the new bridge over Cohocton River.

TELL ME AN INDIAN STORY

The Great Bear in the Sky

The hunting moon had passed and all the people of the village gathered around the fire to hear the exploits of the hunters just returned from the animal trails beyond the village. Each hunter tried to outdo the previous tale teller when at length the embers of the fire grew grey. Then the oldest man of the village shook the ashes from his pipe and a hushed silence came over the gathering.

"Once upon a time", he opened his tale, "there lived on yonder mountain side, the largest bear in the whole world; and hunters for moons and moons planned to bring his pelt into the village, all without success.

"Now there lived in our village three brothers born on the same day of the same mother, and all three brothers grew to be mighty hunters of bear.

"The hunting moon came that year, round and yellow, and a crisp wind whispered through the hemlocks yonder. On such a night, men dream well; and, much to the surprise of the three brothers, each dreamed that he had captured the great bear on the mountain side. At the next moon, the village bid farewell to the three mighty hunters who went forth armed with their best bows and arrows to capture the mighty bear on the mountain side.

"It was late afternoon when they scented the trail and onward up the mountain they continued as the twilight grew fainter and fainter. At length to their startled eyes, they saw the bear outlined on the top of the mountain and each drew his bow to shoot. Each called to the other to let the other one shoot first and as they debated the question, the great bear moved upward into the sky, pursued by the three mighty hunters."

The old man pointed to the sky and all his hearers saw the Great Bear still pursued by the three mighty hunters. White star-gazers often call the Bear the big dipper and name the three hunters as the three kings of shepherds.

Oldsmobile Sales Show Increase

Large gains this year over last in new car retail sales at the automobile shows in the leading cities continue to be recorded by Oldsmobile, reports D. E. Ralston, vice president and general sales manager. At nine of the biggest shows held thus far in 1934, the aggregate increase in Oldsmobile sales as compared with 1933, represents 126 per cent.

High lights in the Oldsmobile record of gains in 1934 are quoted by Mr. Ralston as follows: New York 74 per cent; Buffalo 39 per cent; St. Louis, 104 per cent; Philadelphia, 875 per cent; Milwaukee 24 per cent; Cincinnati, 57 per cent; Cleveland 159 per cent.

"The new car buying movement that started at New York with the opening of the show the second week in January, is being continued in city after city", Mr. Ralston states. "The improvement in business is quite evidently national in scope."

That in Nova Scotia they claim to be able to hypnotize lobsters so that they will stand on their heads? The above photograph is submitted as proof. An expert writes on the gentle art of hypnotizing lobsters as follows: "After elevating the rear end and placing the lobster on its head, then with two fingers of the right hand, if you are right handed, or with the left hand if you are left anded, rub up and down the back shell of the lobster with a soothing stroke. Stroke for about one minute and then move away. The lobster will then remain standing on its head for several minutes".

Opposing the project, the speaker explained, are certain engineers, who feel that it would be impossible to build a canal of the desired type with the sum of money proposed. Attention is also called in certain quarters to the fact that the St. Lawrence is frozen for a portion of the year and that all-year shipping would be impossible as a consequence. Another objection sometimes advanced is that much of the project would be built on Canadian territory. This last objection, in the opinion of Miss Darrin, is a selfish viewpoint since Canadians in general are more indifferent to the project than Americans. Canadians, she said, are well equipped with seaports, such as Vancouver, Montreal, etc, to handle present shipping.

Eastern ports such as New York, Philadelphia, Baltimore, etc, along the American coast, also object to the proposal, since it would mean loss of trade and prestige for them. The railroads, Miss Darrin stated, are also opposing it, being actuated by motives similar to the eastern cities and ports.

"Someone has said that the railroads are the most antiquated institution in the United States. I believe it! They have not met their competition as they should have met it. . . . But they are beginning to do so, now, however", the speaker declared.

Hydroelectric power is an important advantage resulting from the St. Lawrence waterway being stressed by President Roosevelt. The President cited four great centers of hydroelectric power as follows: Muscle Shoals, Boulder Dam, the Columbia River and the Niagara-St. Lawrence. The possibility of electrifiying the railroads with current from the St. Lawrence was also referred to.

"It would seem to be a very fine thing for the nation if we could have the very heart of our country, the center of it, opened up to ocean transportation", said Miss Darrin in summarizing and closing her discourse of the St. Lawrence project.

Ocean liners, she went on to say, are operated by privately owned lines. Each government, however, encourages the building of these boats because, in time of war, they can be and are used as auxiliary cruisers. Great national pride also centers about the building of these ships. The Germans have the Bremen, representing the last word in the luxuriousness and magnificence of maritime trade. The Italians have the gorgeous Rex and Roma, the British have the great Majestic—all made possible and built by subsidies provided by the respective governments. The subsidizing of shipping interests in this manner provides a waste and a strain upon the countries concerned, since the government subsidy must come from taxation, a very bad and inadvisable practice, in the speaker's opinion. Alluding to the fact that the United States has never subsidized the building of boats, she added "In the future, we are not going to use boats, we are going to use airplanes" and she then emphasized the advances which have been made in the past six years, demonstrated particularly by the recent flight of naval planes to Hawaii.

With reference to the monetary and trade situations Miss Darrin stated that President Roosevelt is trying to urge Congress to make reciprocity agreements. She traced the progress of the President's monetary plan by dividing it into three steps: first, that the gold dollar be stabilized at between fifty and sixty cents of the old gold value. This step, she feels, should help business, since it is now possible to plan ahead. The speaker emphasized at this point that this is the first time in the history of the country that the gold content of the dollar has been changed. The intention is not to mint more gold dollars but to keep the gold in the mints in bullion form to be used only for foreign exchange.

As the second point in the gold program, the speaker stated that practically all gold in the country has either been in the United States Treasury or in the Federal Reserve Banks. The President has asked power to take all gold from the Federal Reserve Banks and to give them paper dollars in return. "In making this change from a 100 to a 60 cent dollar, somebody will gain" said Miss Darrin. "Who shall it be?. Shall it be the Federal Reserve banks? The President says 'no'. If the Federal Reserve banks were allowed to keep $3,500,000,000 they would make between two and three billion dollars. Under the government plan, the government itself would make about four dollars on every six dollars in gold taken in.

The third step in the monetary program is the setting aside of a two billion dollar stabilization fund to keep the dollar at a price ranging between 50 and 60 by buying and selling of paper dollars. The fund would be handled by the secretary of the treasury.

Miss Darrin stated that the monetary program apparently enjoys the overwhelming support of Congress. A feeling exists in some circles, however, she said, that most Congressmen and Senators are simply following what seems to them the easiest course by supporting the President's recommendation, especially since it concerns a subject with which they have no profound knowledge and since they believe it enjoys wide support of the people. The refusal of Senators Glass and Gore, both Democrats, to support the measure was emphasized. Senator Glass objects to the President's program because the gold standard was dropped voluntarily, instead of waiting, as was the case with England and France, until a lack of gold actually forced such action. Senator Glass also feels that the credit of the United States is being undermined and that the policy of calling in gold from the reserve banks and depriving the banks of the profits, also the repudiation of the gold cause, is dishonest and unjustified.

Japan, said Miss Darrin in touching upon her second topic, "has been keeping the world awake". She explained that Japanese competition is undermining the trade of the world. The wages of Japanese workmen are approximately one-twelfth of that paid in Switzerland, she said. She referred to Japanese aggressiveness in trade and her militant defiance of Russia and other world powers in her Manchurian and Far Eastern policies. "A very encouraging thing happened the other day, however", the speaker stated. "The war minister was displaced by another of more moderate tendencies".

Speaking of Italy, Miss Darrin said that the Italian Chamber of Deputies, representing the different sections of the country, graphically, had voted itself out of existence. A new parliament is being chosen to represent the different guilds and tradesmen, without regard to geographical sections.

"When in Italy I was impressed with the prevailing cleanliness and order. I found Rome to be a wonderfully clean and impressive city... The tomb of the Unknown Soldier there is the most magnificent I have seen . . . and I have seen these memorials in all the great nations" she stated. There was no begging anywhere, she added.

Miss Darrin was in Rome when the Fascisti were having their great convention. She saw boys from 14 to 16 marching, also other groups with boys from 9 to 14, all with bands and guns. "The great impression which I carried away from Italy", the speaker said, "is that Italy is so proud of itself. Mussolini has made everything there so clean, so orderly, so progressive, he has got everyone working, everyone on their toes. He has done a magnificent job", she said.

In referring to books of the day, Miss Darrin mentioned "House of Exile", which gives the experiences of an American girl who went over and lived with a high class Chinese family. This book gives an excellent idea of customs among the wealthier families in the great far eastern nation. She also cited the Pearl Buck group of books as giving an intimate view of Chinese life and customs. The last of this group entitled "Mother" is a remarkable study of primitive human creatures in China and is highly recommended.

"Ulysses" by James Joyce, originally written in 1922 and by certain literary people has been considered a masterpiece. Others considered it unfit for reading. "It seems to me a sort of satire. That is the only way I can consider it a great book", said Miss Darrin.

"Anthony Adverse" was another book currently popular, to which she referred. This is a story of a man and his adventures, from birth to death.

Addison Girls Took Thrilling Game From Painted Post Squaws

With a breath-taking climax the Addison High School girls defeated the Painted Post sextet Friday evening in as thrilling a game of basket ball as Addison fans ever saw. The result remained in doubt up to the last second of play, for a hitherto unbeaten bunch of Squaws had fought a determined uphill battle which it seemed could not be denied.

The game started off like a rout of the famous sextet which has been burning up Steuben County opposition. After the Post scored an early opening basket, Mary Tobin and Perkins began bombarding the loop with a volley of deadly shots which tallied 14 points. The amazing first quarter ended 14 to 6, and the supposedly unbeatable Post girls seemed headed for a bad trimming. But the visitors' star forward swung into action during the next period and they nearly closed the gap with three field baskets and two accurately thrown foul shots, the half ending 17 to 14 in favor of Coach Harbeck's girls.

The Post tossed one in early in the second half, but Perkins regained that three-point lead by a nicely placed shot. The Squaws then tied the score with a foul and a field basket and shortly forged two points ahead with another field goal which gave them the lead 21 to 19 at the end of the third-quarter. It looked then as if the Addison girls had shot their bolt early in the game and would be buried in the final period.

However, Tobin and Company thought differently for Mary tossed in another of her deadly overhand shots to tie the score. The Post took the lead again with another one-hand shot by Ohls. Perkins kept the Addison girls in the game by sinking a foul shot, but the time was drawing shorter and that one-point lead looked bigger than an elephant. The play waxed hotter and Addison fans nearly had heart failure as Mary Tobin, Perkins and Chart bounced the ball against all sides of the basket. Meanwhile the time-keepers' assistant had hung the last minute of play marker on the board, and the ball started toward the Painted Post goal. Alert Addison guards were on their job, so back it came to Mary who wheeled, lifted her arms and in it rolled for a precious one-point lead. Painted Post called for time out and the timers announced twenty seconds left to play. Those were breath-taking moments as the ball was tossed in center, but Mary batted it safely back to one of her forwards. In the ensuing skirmish a Post guard knocked it out of bounds. In it came and again the Post knocked it out, the whistle sounding just as the sphere returned to play. The score was 24 to 23, and the fans had their money's worth in the last quarter of play alone.

Besides controlling the tap all evening at center, Mary Tobin tossed in 15 of her team's 24 points. She played the finest game of her career. She had able assistance from her two forwards, Perkins doing particularly good work shooting three field and one foul basket. The two guards and side-center did yeoman service in keeping the ball down at the Addison end of the court most of the game, and all three deserve warm praise for their determined play. The Post right forward is undoubtedly the most dangerous point getter in the league, shooting successfully from every angle of the court, and by holding her in check through the first half of the game the Addison defense paved the way for this fine victory over a fighting team of Painted Post stars.

Coach Hewson's Knights Too Fast For The Post Indians

Taking an early, decisive lead the A. H. S. five held Painted Post in check throughout the evening Friday and won by the final score of 22 to 15. The margin of difference between the two teams was exemplified by the score at the end of the quarters, the first ending 4 to 0, the second 10 to 3 and the third 14 to 5. Compared to the thrill of the girls' contest the boys' game seemed rather tame as an out-classed tribe of Indians tried all evening to penetrate the air-tight defense of the Addison Knights, who seemed content most of the time to coast along on their 7 point lead without extending themselves to roll up a big score.

The tightness of the Addison defense, or the poor basket shooting of the Post, whichever way one cares to look at it, was responsible for the fact the visitors never made a field basket until the final minute of the third quarter. In the last stanza both teams opened up offensively and the game took on a sparkle and dash it lacked three-quarters of the way. Wilson was the high scorer, playing the best game he has uncorked on the local court this year to score five field baskets. The foul shooting of both teams was poor, Addison after making good 4 out of 5 free throws against Hornell the week before got 2 pounts out of 10 attempts against the Post. The Post missed 10 out of 13.

Addison took an early lead in the first quarter on a nicely placed long shot by Hickey. Flynn made the only other basket during the period. Hickey tallied another long shot o begin the second quarter and Flynn kept pace with him with a nice loop that skinned through. Wilson then slipped through for his first basket, a cripple under the hoop. The Indians made their first two points on successive fouls by Flynn and Hargrave. Wilson and Hickey missed free throws. The Post scored on another foul at the end of the period.

Wilson made a double decker at the beginning of th. econd half, and after the Post missed a foul shot one of Coach Hewson's plays clicked nicely as Wilson slipped inside the Post defense to toss another. The Post missed four successive free throws, but just before the quarter whistle the visitors scored from the field.

It began to look like a ball game as the Indians tossed two nice field shots into the basket. Robbins was fouled and sunk his gratis shot. Wilson looped a pretty one through the hoop, but missed a free shot when fouled a moment later. The Post scored again from the field, and Wilson evened things with his fifth field goal. Flynn missed his free throw after he was fouled . Robbins went out of the game on personals, Hargrave replacing him in center. The Indians scored again. Hargrave banked one in from the fifteen foot line. Hickey registered another point on a free throw. The Post looped one just before the game ended.

Addison Took Dear Victory At Canisteo

The Addison High School basket ball team found Canisteo easier to beat on their own court Saturday, than when they were in the A. H. S. gym a couple of weeks ago. However the 31 to 17 victory which the Knights brought home was a hollow affair for it cost an injury to Bill Wilson which will probably keep him out of the C. F. A. game this Friday evening.

Wilson's injury came to his ankle at the beginning of the second quarter when he and a Canisteo player both jumped after the ball. The Canisteo lad landed on Wilson's foot, giving him a bad sprain of the arch which may still be too stiff to play Friday. In spite of the fact he was only in the game one quarter, Bill led both teams in scoring with 5 field baskets. His place in right forward was taken by Hargrave who was second high scorer with 8 points on 4 field baskets. Robbins had 6 points, Hovey 5 and Flynn 2.

In the preliminary to the main game the Canisteo second team administered a neat trimming to the Addison seconds and Freshmen, who came in last on a 21 to 8 score.

Post Javees Too Much For Addison Second Five

The Addison second team and the Freshmen divided defeats between them as a fast Painted Post Javee five ran rampant in the opening preliminary last Friday evening. The final score of the fray was 35 to 10. The Addison second stringers and Freshmen were hopelessly outmatched by bigger, more experienced Post boys who dominated the play.

Men and women of national and international fame are coming to farm and home week at Cornell University from February 12 to 17, says the New York state college of agriculture. The list of speakers for the week includes Governor Herbert H. Lehman, Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt, Dr. G. F. Warren, Dr. W. I. Myers and others, says the college, who have had a part in shaping the destiny of state and nation.

An outstanding program has been drafted, the state college declares, and crowds larger than the five thousand and more of years past are expected.

From the opening day on February 12 to the closing on February 17, more than 400 talks, demonstrations, discussion periods, exhibits, contests, and entertainment features have been arranged. Plenty of opportunity will be given guests to discuss individual problems with members of both college staffs.

Governor Lehman's address takes place on Friday in Bailey Hall, scene of many important gatherings and addresses in the past.

Mrs. Roosevelt Speaks

Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt speaks in the auditorium of the same hall on Thursday of farm and home week. She has become an annual visitor to Cornell, and her appearance is always awaited with the keenest interest by both the university and the five thousand and more who attend the week's events.

Dr. George F. Warren, head of the department of agricultural economics and farm management at Cornell, gives four lectures during the week. Monday, he gives some suggestions to young farmers. On Wednesday, he discusses methods of organization for doing the world's work. Thursday, he talks on prices of farm products, and on Friday he analyzes the business situation.

Dr. W. I. Myers, governor of the farm credit administration, gives an address on agricultural credit on Wednesday. Dr. Myers was a member of the staff of the agricultural economics department at Cornell until his appointment to the federal post last November.

On Tuesday, Charles H. Baldwin, commissioner of agriculture and markets of Albany, outlines the work of the New York state milk control board; on the same day Frank H. Hiscock, trustee of Cornell University, is slated to talk.

Wednesday, also, E. H. Thompson, president of the federal land bank, Springfield, Mass., speaks on facilities of the federal land bank, and the next day, Thursday, Dr. Livingston Farrand, president of Cornell University, presides at a meeting in Bailey Hall to discuss home economics and the welfare of the people of New York state. Speakers at this meeting are: Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt; Alfred D. Schoellkopf, chairman, New York state temporary emergency relief administration; Dr. Thomas Parran, Jr., commissioner of the state department of health; and David C. Adie, commissioner of the New York state department of social welfare.

Dedicate New Home

Formal dedication of Martha Van Rensselaer Hall, new home of the New York state college of home economics, takes place during the week. Speakers on the dedication program include President Livingston Farrand; Judge Frank Harris Hiscock for trustees of Cornell University; Provost A. R. Mann; Dean C. E. Ladd; Harlan H. Horner, assistant commissioner of higher education of the state department of education; Louise Stanley, chief of the bureau of home economics in the United States department of agriculture; Frances Zuill, president of the American home economics association, University of Iowa; and Martha Van Liew, chief of the bureau of home economics, state department of education.

Dean C. E. Ladd delivers the address of welcome to all farm and home week visitors on Monday at 2 P. M.

All departments of the colleges of agriculture and home economics are cooperating in an attempt to make this year's farm and home week, the twenty-seventh on record, one of the most outstanding ever held, reports Professor R. H. Wheeler who is in charge of arrangements.

Draft Varied Program

Complete programs, he says, have been arranged for the dairyman, the farm engineer, the poultryman, the vegetable and fruit grower, the livestock man interested in beef cattle, sheep or swine, the small gardener, and farmers who want business problems of the farm analyzed.

For farm women, a list of events equally as attractive as the men's program has been arranged, Professor Wheeler says. Some of the topics listed are: lowering food costs, selection of clothing, how to judge values when buying, practical means of saving money, time and energy in food preparation, health values in food, and other phases of family finance.

Visits to the nursery school are welcomed. Here homemakers may see training of children under nursery school conditions and the progress made in education for children of that age.

Motion pictures and discussions on the "ways" of a child's behavior will be presented by Dr. Kurt Lewin, noted child psychologist from the University of Berlin. Dr. Lewin is at present a member of the faculty of Cornell University.

The college of home economics, the department of rural education and rural social organization and others have joined hands in the endeavor to make the farm and home week program for women as valuable and interesting as possible. They have planned many exhibits and entertainment features which, they say, must be seen and heard to be really appreciated.

Have Time to Rest

The idea of all work and no play has not been overlooked by those in charge of the program this year. A. D. Zanzig of the national recreation association conducts each day a song-leadership hour and a general recreation period. Free musical events during the week include an organ recital, two band concerts and an orchestra concert.

In addition, a state dramatic festival, finals in the twenty-fifth Eastman stage contest, and a program of plays by students of the college, feature evening meetings during the week.

Most railroad lines offer reduced rates to farm and home week visitors. In most instances, a rate of fare and one-half for the round trip to Ithaca is possible. Prospective visitors are urged to ask for round trip tickets to Ithaca or East Ithaca. Local agents can give exact costs.

Advanced reservation for rooms is unnecessary. Rooms in private houses at reasonable rates are obtainable.

"Farm and home week this year, February 12 to 17, is one week farmers and homemakers in New York state should not miss", Professor Wheeler says. He urges all to make every effort to attend.

A complete program of events may be obtained on request from the New York state college of agriculture at Ithaca.

LET'S PLAY A GAME

Games At The Table

Games at the table promote good digestion and sociability. Try the game of "Gossip" in which some person leans over and whispers a piece of news (harmless and funny) to his right hand neighbor. This person whispers what he hears to his right hand neighbor and so the gossip goes around the table till it reaches the last person who reports out loud what he has heard. The starter of the gossip then tells what he first said, and then compares notes. Note the different stories.

A guessing game "I'm thinking of a word" goes very well at the table and slows up too rapid eating. One person says "I am thinking of a word" and then the others ask questions. Each person has the right to ask two questions. The person who guesses the word now becomes "It" and thinks of a new word. This increases observation and vocabulary.

"Rhythm" is fun. This is a guessing contest where one person taps out the rhythm of a certain tune with his spoon in his glass. The others guess the tune. This is good exercise in music memory and sense of rhythm.

How What and Why?

This paper has arranged with the Office of Information of the New York State colleges of agriculture and home economics to answer questions about problems of farm and home. If you enclose a self-addressed, stamped envelope, and mention the name of this paper, you will receive a direct reply to your query from the colleges. Do not ask more than one question in one letter or on one post card. Ask as many questions as you like, but make each one a separate communication.

Lumber for Silos

P. G., Cherry Valley, N. Y., asks: "What lumber is best to use for silo building? Have you any bulletins that describe the work?"

Professor A. M. Goodman of the New York state college of agriculture answers: "Woods that have the longest life are usually used. In order they are: (1) southern cypress, (2) western red cedar, (3) Douglas fir and long leaf yellow pine which are of about the same value, (4) white pine and spruce, also of the same value, and (5) hemlock, which is last on the list.

"We are sending a list of silo manufacturers and a copy of United States Department of Agriculture farmers' bulletin 855 which may prove helpful."

Points on Gladiolus

Rev. E. T. M. Gillett, Arkansas, writes: "Use of napthalene flakes helped me to destroy the insect 'gladiolus thrips'.

"To accomplish this, I put home grown bulbs in sugar sacks, then placed them in a large container. Into this I sprinkle plenty of flakes and then closed the lid tightly. I left them this way for two weeks and opened the lid occasionally for a few minutes.

"When the bulbs first began to show moisture, I took them out of the container and placed them in paper bags, well sprinkled with flakes, for six weeks. The bulbs showed no sign of injury. I did not spray the plants when bedded, though I did use the garden hose a few times.

"Although I am only an amateur gladiolus grower, I have made many breeding tests and have grown more than 5,000 seeds. Some of these should make fine flowers.

"I am interested in the fragrant bulb 'tristis' and other gladioli. Where can I buy this bulb or any other of the few fragrant gladioli?"

A. M. S. Pridham of the department of floriculture at Cornell answers: "For the species 'tristis" which is reported as fragrant, I suggest that you write to Dr. Forman T. McLean of the New York botanical gardens. Dr. McLean has made an extensive study of the fragrant species and varieties and is more likely to have a supply of bulbs than any of the commercial growers.

"Your work in breeding gladiolus is interesting, and you may have some very promising seedlings. We are pleased to test such seedlings in our gardens and report on them. We like to have three to six bulbs of a variety as this gives us a chance to study growth of the plant as well as the flower. If you care to send such samples we will be pleased to include them in our 1934 planting. There is no charge for this work."

Stable Has Heat At Twenty Below

Home Made Ventilation System Sends Air Towards Ceiling; Stops Drafts

"Hello, my stable is fine."

A farm bureau agent was roused from his bed an hour earlier than usual. The telephone was ringing. Outside it was twenty below zero. He picked up the receiver, and those words came to his ears.

It all happened because a ventilating system in a nearby dairy stable was working perfectly. Though it was twenty degrees below zero outside, it was forty above in the stable. The excited owners were so proud they immediately called the county agent to tell him the good news.

They had a sturdy, well-built barn with a good stable in it. For years they tried to keep this stable dry by ventilating it through the windows but without success. Sometimes the stable was shut too tightly for mild nights, and sometimes it was too open for cold nights. Cows suffered from drafts. Moisture from the dairy stable ,also, found its way along the sides of the hay mow. Hay started to mold and became dusty when it dried out.

At their request the county agent and Professor A. M. Goodman of the New York state college of agriculture helped to install a ventilating system. The first sub-zero weather convinced them that it was a wise move, says Professor Goodman.

This experience, he adds, is typical in nearly every county in New York state where the home made ventilation system, which the New York state college of agriculture has developed and which farm bureaus are recommending, has been adopted.

Some means to remove air from the stable is the main feature of this ventilation system, Professor Goodman says. An electric fan or a wooden chimney with two thicknesses of lumber separated by paper is needed. The size of both depends on the number of cows to be served. Small inlet flues permit the air to enter through the sidewalls and once inside, it is directed straight up to the ceiling. Regardless of wind direction, he says, the air can not blow on the cows.

Professor Goodman says that many of these ventilation systems are in use throughout the state, including six or eight of the barns owned by the state of New York.

Cornell extension bulletin 151 describes this system of ventilation for dairy stables. It is sent free on request. Write to the office of publication, Roberts Hall, Ithaca, N. Y. for a copy.

The leading states in poultry production are Iowa, Missouri, California and Texas, in that order. California, Iowa, Missouri, Pennsylvania and Ohio lead in the value of eggs sold.

Good Sanitation Blow To Garget

Dairymen Suffer Huge Losses, Say Scientists—New Bulletin Available

No one can estimate the economic loss caused by mastitis, commonly known as garget, say Professor D H. Udall and S. D. Johnson of the New York state veterinary college. In some dairy cattle herds the loss is slight, they say, and in others it is severe.

Each herd, however, pays an unnecessary toll, they declare, and the total loss is enormous. Because of the hidden nature of the disease it may often go unnoticed.

When an owner says that a certain cow made a high record but was "burned-out" by high feeding and never produced well again, the usual cause is mastitis, according to the college scientists. The disease is marked by repeated attacks that tend to appear when the cow is drying off, or shortly after she freshens, or when she is fed on a high protein diet, or when exposed to unusual strain. If the disease is active the milk may become watery and contain flakes.

They recommend good sanitation to prevent or control garget. The best evidence shows, they say, that infection occurs during milking, and they urge extra precaution at milking time. According to them, garget spreads less readily in herds milked by hand than in herds milked by a machine.

A new Cornell bulletin tells how to recognize garget and ways to control it. A free copy may be obtained from the office of publication, New York state college of agriculture at Ithaca, N. Y. Ask for P-579.

Around Our House

Waterproof Shoes ot Keep Feet Dry

Shoes that must be worn out of doors in all kinds of winter weather can be waterproofed by soaking them in a mixture of oil and wax, says the New York state college of home economics. Shoes so treated are not completely waterproof like rubber boots, but they do afford much protection against moisture. Any of the following formulas may be used for the waterproofing mixture, depending on what materials are most readily available:

Formula 1: Neutral wool grease, 8 ounces; dark petrolatum, 4 ounces; paraffin wax, 2 ounces.

Formula 2: Petrolatum, 16 ounces; beeswax, 2 ounces.

Formula 3: Petrolatum, 8 ounces; paraffin wax, 4 ounces; wool grease, 4 ounces, crude turpentine gum (gum thus), 2 ounces.

Formula 4: Tallow, 12 ounces; cod oil, 4 ounces.

To apply any of the compounds, melt the ingredients and mix them thoroughly. Apply the mixture, warm, not hot, to all outside parts of the shoe. In cold weather a slight excess over what the leather will absorb does no harm. Grease the welt and sole edge with special care. Then saturate the sole with the mixture by setting the shoe in a shallow pan which holds enough melted grease to cover the soles. Rubber heels should not be greased; allow them to hang over the edge of the pan.

Purity Of New York State Foods Assured By Vigilant Inspection

New York State Food Products May Be Purchased With Confidence and Pride

By CHARLES H. BALDWIN
Commissioner, Department of Agriculture and Markets Albany, New York

THE purity and wholesomeness of New York State milk, dairy products and other foods is assured to consumers by the State Department of Agriculture and Markets, through the pure food laws of the State, which it enforces. As a consequence of the high standards set by law and the vigilant enforcement of these statutes, New York State consumers enjoy the best and highest quality of milk and other food products of any consumers in the world.

The inspection upon which the enforcement of the state pure food laws depends takes place in retail stores, wholesale storage houses, on the farms, and in the various places where food stuffs are produced, stored or processed.

Canned Goods Examined

Tomatoes, for example, are graded as to quality when they come in from the fields to the canning factories, and the processes of canning are carefully inspected so that only fresh, wholesome, ripe and clean fruit is packed under sanitary conditions. After canning, the product is again examined, to make sure that the containers have the required weight of wholesome fruit, not diluted in any way with water or unnecessary liquid.

Similar inspection takes place in canning corn, cherries, and all other fruits and vegetables. The cans on the retailers' shelves are also examined to see that they have not spoiled because of imperfections in the cans or the canning process or from too long storage.

Protecting Oyster Eaters

Oysters and scallops, when soaked in fresh water, absorb enormous amounts of liquid which later is released as a liquor. Unscrupulous tradesmen sometimes take advantage of this peculiarity of the oyster and scallop by selling too high a proportion of liquor or added water. Ten per cent water in the containers is the standard to which the Department of Agriculture and Markets holds the handlers of oysters and scallops.

Milk is examined as to quality and grade, involving such matters as the percentage of butter fat contained, freedom from undesirable sediment or bacteria, odor and flavor, health of the producing cows and of their attendants, and the length of time it has taken to bring the milk from the country to the consumer's doorstep.

And so it goes with other foodstuffs produced in the Empire State —butter, cheese, eggs. The New York State consumer is in a favorable situation indeed. Buy New York State food products with confidence and pride!

Potatoes $25 ? Yes For a Bushel Of Prize Winners

Potatoes will be worth $25 a bushel, according to a bulletin issued by the farm bureau today. That is to say the successful exhibitors at the Seventh Annual Steuben County Potato Growers' Convention at Wayland, February 8-9, will receive prizes to that amount.

Some 60 prizes worth $75 will be awarded in the competition which is open to potato growers in Livingston and Steuben counties.

Interesting Program Offered

Subjects of current interest to potato growers will be discussed at this meeting. Theodore Capron of the produce firm of W. W. Capron & Sons, will talk on "Marketing Steuben Potatoes". L. A. Toan, operator of a large potato farm at Perry, will relate his experiences with the various methods of cultivation and cover crops.

Prof. M. F. Barrus will report on the result of seed treatment and Dr. E. V. Hardenburg of the college of agriculture has been assigned the subject of harvesting and storing potatoes. Prof. MacLeod's report on the control of wire worm and millipeds is of unusual interest, as is the discussion of Prof. W. C. Hopper on the potato market outlook.

Exhibits a Feature

Specimens of the various insects that attack the potato plant and tubers will be on display and there will be exhibits of certified seed potatoes and seed grains. A novel feature of the potato show will be the exhibit of freak vegetables. Because of the abnormal growing season odd shapes and sizes of vegetables are common and many monstrosities will be on display. Another feature of the convention is the show of 1934 potato machinery.

Entertainment Provided

An extensive musical program has been arranged for the entertainment of the convention guests. Joe Mooney, famous harmonica player, the Wayland High School Orchestra and Glee Club, the German Band, and community singing, are all included in the program.

A noteworthy feature is the address by Ludvig S. Dale, world wide traveler and lecturer, who will deliver an address on "Cooperation" in the closing session of the convention.

Carl Wellington, chairman of the meeting, states that all sessions will be held in the Legion Theatre and will begin promptly at 10:30 in the morning and 1:30 in the afternoon. All potato growers of Steuben County are invited to attend the sessions and to exhibit at the show. A copy of the program will be furnished interested parties upon request to the farm bureau office.

Guy E. Cheney Addressed Ad Club Wed. on State Aid To Education

President of State Association of School Boards Talked To Club Men on Educational Problems — Says State Has Repudiated Its Promises to Districts Building Schools.

Guy Cheney, president of the New York State School Boards' Association, spoke to the Addison Advertising Club yesterday noon on the subject of Education. Mr. Cheney, who is candidate for judge of Steuben County, has waged a progressive fight the last two years to protect upstate school districts from loss of state aid.

Mr. Cheney stated that the association which he heads, is made up of 500 school boards which represent ninety per cent of the school children in New York outside the metropolitan area. He spoke briefly of the different activities of the association which have saved money for various districts, among them being the study of both fire and liability insurance causing large savings for the member dis tricts that have followed suggestions of the organization. Turning to the problem of state aid Mr. Cheney said:

"Every dollar cut from state aid adds that much more to the tax bill against real estate, and real estate of the state is now carrying over eighty per cent of the tax burden although it represents only one third the wealth of the state. When this Democracy was organized it was early recognized that its continuence was impossible unless most of the people were educated, intelligent citizens. Governor Dewitt Clinton realizing the fact, did much to lay the foundation of our state education system. And today we know as never before that only as education is put in the path of every boy and girl, will our advancement continue.

"It is not true that every child has an equal chance for advancement. An emigrant child set down near one of our New York City high schools actually has greater opportunities than a native country boy, born back in our hills far from an academic school. To remedy this lack as much as possible a study of rural school conditions was made which finally resulted in 1926 of the passage of the state School Aid Acts. Only one other man can be more thanked for these acts than former Senator Ernest E. Cole, once principal of Addison High School. Governor Alfred E. Smith, although a city boy himself, was a strong champion of rural education.

"There resulted the State Aid Law allowing a minimum of assistance to school districts, dependant upon the registration of pupils and the number of teachers employed. The law provided that this aid should increase from year to year, thus lifting a portion of the school tax burden from real estate. It is interesting to note that in 1890 only one pupil out of 50 attended high school. In 1900 the number of high school pupils practically doubled, and in 1910 some 8% of the state's pupils were academic. The number nearly doubled again by 1920, and today the increase of registration has been so rapid that substantially 37% of our students are registered in senior high schools.

"This last amazing increase is largely traceable to the State Aid laws. State officials came out in the rural districts everywhere and dictated that large, new school buildings must be erected according to certain specifications. The buildings must include gymnasiums and be equipped with many departments never before found in these schools. The state made definite contracts with the school boards saying you build your buildings thus and so, and we will promise you this state aid to carry the bulk of the cost load, year after year.

"The state has repudiated its promises. In withdrawing ten per cent of the promised state aid last year, the state piled extra tax burdens upon the real estate owners of the up-state districts. It is probable that Addison has been loaded with an extra tax burden of some $8,000 through this repudiation of state promises, and other districts have lost still more.

"When you economize on education you are 'fiddling while Rome burns,' yet there has grown up an organization which has been spreading the gospel of school economy. This State Economic Council, has made a drive against state aid and although Governor Lehman himself is a friend of education, this group was able to influence public opinion to an extent that the ten per cent cut in state aid was forced upon us last year. The president of this organization which has been fighting our education program, himself draws a large enough salary from it so he can afford to send his own children to private schools.

"Most of the opposition to state aid has come from people residing in the metropolitan area. The man who most openly accused up-state schools of extravagant building costs was a man from Rye, New York, where the school building cost $2,100 per pupil. Was his criticism fair when our upstate schools have been built at an average cost of $300 per pupil?

"During these depression years our high school population has increased tremendously. What has there been for a young man to do after he finishes school? He could not get a job, few could go to college, so larger numbers of them have continued taking more advanced subjects in high schools. If they do not continue in school they must pass out into our streets and these new saloons now springing up. It is the most crucial time in our history. I say, as I intend to tell Commissioner Graves right to his face when I meet him week after next, the State Department of Education is 10 years behind the times. Ignorance of economic truths has brought us into this present condition. Every high school student should be required to take a course in Economics, in Political Economy and Sociology, for greater knowlege of these subjects are necessary for our complete civilization."

Preceding and following Mr. Cheney's talk the club was entertained with violin solos by Wesley Smith accompanied by Miss Martha Ginanne. The singing was led by the Rev. Kenneth E. Arnold. The Rev. Father William J. Killackey gave the invocation and the Rev. Ralph Webb pronounced the benediction. Ralph Dykins was chairman of the entertainment committee.
